

PROGRAM BY SINGER/SONGWRITER

Charlie Maguire

TITLE:

People are People the Whole World Over

DESCRIPTION:

Following the footsteps of legendary photographer Robert Capa, Charlie Maguire tracked down the Iowa farm featured in a photodocumentary that ran for a year in Ladies Home Journal in 1948. “People are People the Whole World Over” was a year-long series that documented the ordinary, daily lives of twelve families across the globe. The Pratt family of Glidden, Iowa (population 1,146) represented the United States.

In advance of this program, participants will listen to a 45-minute podcast about the story at “Hit the Streets with Valerie Jardin.”

The week-long residency will use photography and songwriting to explore stories of life today. Participants will photograph their lives, share the stories, then write a collective song about their community. A final public concert will include the new song as well as many from Charlie’s collection of songs about unique people in our past.

“Charlie Maguire is something of a legend in the midwest. He commands a respect far beyond his years with his stories and songs of the heartland of America and the people who live there.”
